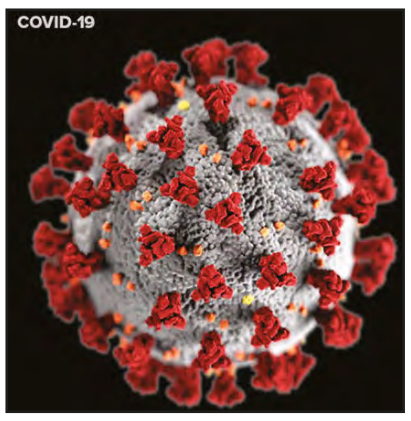
Local health, officials preparing for COVID-19

Courier staff report

While no cases of caronavirus have been reported in Jefferson and surrounding counties as of Monday afternoon, both Indiana and Kentucky now have their first cases as the highly contagious COVID-19 novel continues its spread across the U.S.

Both Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb and Kentucky Gov. Andy Beshear have declared state of emergencies to ensure all state entities have the necessary resources to respond including a central, coordinated response.

Local health and government officials met Monday to go over Jefferson County's plan for keeping residents as safe as possible from COVID-19 and dealing with the virus if or when the first cases are diagnosed locally.



For now, that response involves educating not only themselves by closely monitoring information provided by the Indiana State Department of Health, U.S. Centers for Disease Control and World Health Organization but sharing important details with citizens on the Jefferson County and Madison government websites as well as the Jefferson County Health Department's Facebook page.

The plans include meeting and coordinating with local stakeholders, updating the county's crisis communication plans, reviewing the county's pandemic flu plans and putting in place processes to monitor the county's exposure and response. Businesses and schools, most of which have already launched their own in-house responses, are also being provided information — and urged to update their policies and response plans — all in an effort to educate the public on the best way to avoid getting COVID-19.

Scientists say the virus strain that causes COVID-19 probably emerged from an animal source but is now spreading person to person. Coronavirus is not a new virus — one-fourth of all upper respiratory infections are a form of coronavirus — but the COVID-19 is a new version of the virus first identified in 2019 while investigating an outbreak in Wuhan, China.

The virus is thought to spread mainly among people in close contact — within about 6 feet — through respiratory droplets produced when an infected person sneezes or coughs. It may also be possible for COVID-19 to be spread by touching a surface or

Committee gets first look at possible jail

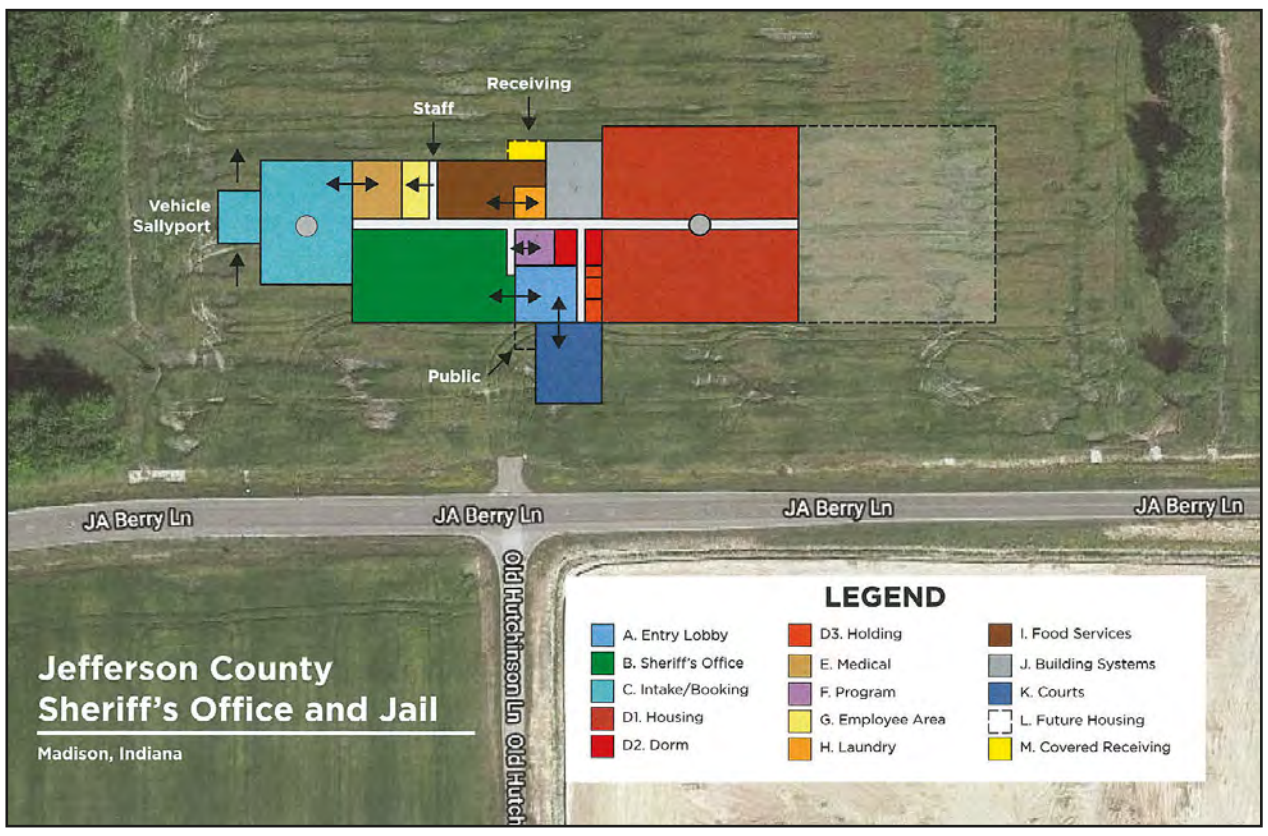
The architectural firm tasked with designing the new Jefferson County Jail gave county officials and the public an idea of what the facility might look like at a meeting of the jail exploratory committee Friday night.

Two years of planning and discussion have culminated in the first preview of the site, which was put into motion last March when overcrowding pushed the current jail's population to more than 180 inmates and resulted in an order from the state to develope a plan of action. The estimated $36.7 million facility, to be built at J.A. Berry and Hutchinson Lane on Madison's hilltop, has an expected completion date of fall 2020 or spring 2021 and will house up to 300 inmates.

Scott Carnegie, a project manager for architect firm DLZ, presented commissioners and sheriff's office personnel with a rough outline of how the jail might look. The current square footage is estimated at 88,197 but the team is looking to make reductions for cost effectiveness, he said.

Carnegie reminded the committee that this was far from the final plan.

"Once we have the feedback from you tonight, the next step is to incorporate and to react to any comments you may have, and to take these individual blocks and begin to identify the individual rooms within each of the subsections." he said.



An architectural drawing of the proposed new Jefferson County Jail by DLZ architects that was reviewed by members of the county's Jail Exploratory Committee Friday night.

As proposed, the jail would house 254 general population beds, two medical and eight holding cell beds for both men and women with 10 dormitory beds for male inmate workers and six for female workers, and 10 single-occupant segregation cells.

The first sketch showed general population taking up 11,600 feet in the eastern third of the building, with a circular master control room in the middle with a 360 degree view of the area. Cells would be stacked on two row mezzanines for ease of supervision from the middle of the room,

Indiana 2, Kentucky 4 reports of coronavirus

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A second person in Indiana has tested positive for COVID-19 after traveling to Boston to attend a biotech firm's meeting and three more cases have been reported in Kentucky, including one involving a department store employee there, state officials said Sunday.

The second Indiana case, an adult who lives in Hendricks County, attended a meeting for Biogen Inc. last month and "developed mild flu-like symptoms" days later, according to the Indiana State Department of Health.

The person is in isolation and not being hospitalized. State officials said several COVID-19 cases have been tied to the Boston meeting, including a Marion County resident identified Friday as Indiana's first case.

"With the increasing number of COVID-19 cases in the United States and the fact that we are a mobile society, this new case isn't surprising, but we know it causes concern in the community," State Health Commissioner Dr. Kris Box said in a statement.

He urged the state's residents to take "common-sense precautions" and educate themselves.

Worldwide, the virus has infected more than 100,000 people and killed more than 3,400 — the vast majority of them in China. Most cases have been mild, and more than half of those infected have recovered.

The three new cases reported in Kentucky — now two total in Harrison County where schools will

Blaze destroys shed, building materials

Courier staff report

Firefighters in Milton were dispatched to a structure fire in the 600 block of Richmond Road Sunday after embers from a brush pile burn the night before apparently came into contact with the structure and ignited a blaze.

Homeowner Brandy Hudgens told firefighters she had been burning a brush pile the night before and believed the fire to be out. However, some of the coals were apparently still hot and a wind gust the next afternoon blew them onto a 100-year-old wooden shed, causing it to catch fire.

When firefighters arrived at the scene, the shed was fully involved and the homeowners were trying to put

House leadership change set as session nears end

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — An unusual leadership change is set to happen in the Indiana House just as this year's legislative session is about to wrap up. Republican House Speaker Brian Bosma plans to step down Monday from the position he's held for the past 10 years after announcing in November that he wouldn't seek reelection this year. Republican House members are then expected to ratify their pick of Rep. Todd Huston so that he can be sworn in Monday afternoon to the position that largely controls which proposals are considered. Bosma and Huston have been close allies, with Huston serving last year as the top House budget negotiator. Bosma sayid the transition just before the legislative session adjourns this week avoids confusion over House leadership and gives Huston a few days "to get his feet wet." Huston is from the Indianapolis suburb of Fishers and was first elected to the House in 2012. He was the state Republican Party treasurer and was chief of staff for GOP former state schools superintendent Tony Bennett before joining the Legislature. Bosma is the longest-serving House speaker in state history. He's been the top House Republican as either speaker or minority leader since 2001. He was first speaker in 2005-2006, after which Democrats regained House control for four years, but Bosma returned to the top position he's held since 2011.

US Attorney reviewing polling places for ADA

INDIANAPOLIS — U.S. Attorney Josh Minkler said his office is reviewing all polling places in the Southern District of Indiana to see if they comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Minkler said Friday there's a congressionally mandated responsibility to review compliance with the ADA. He notes that "this year marks the 30th anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act." As part of the review, election officials are being asked to complete surveys on polling place accessibility in their counties. Investigators may then conduct on-site inspections to confirm survey responses and to evaluate compliance with ADA regulations. Counties found in violation will have the option of resolving issues informally or may enter into a Voluntary Compliance Agreement with the government in which they voluntarily agree to upgrade their facilities, and address issues before the November 2020 election. Minkler said counties found to engage in a pattern or practice of discrimination or that fail to enter into Voluntary Compliance Agreements may face lawsuits. The ADA prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability in all programs, activities, and services provided by public entities. Anyone with polling place concerns in the Southern District is encouraged to contact Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeffrey Preston at 317-226-6333.

Driver in February jet fuel tanker crash

INDIANAPOLIS — A truck driver who was engulfed in flames when his tanker carrying jet fuel crashed and exploded on an Indianapolis highway ramp died Saturday 16 days after the crash, a hospital said. Jeffrey "Duke" Denman, 59, of Brownsburg died at the Richard Banks Burn Center at Eskenazi Health, a hospital spokesman said. Denman told police the tanker was loaded with 4,000 gallons of jet fuel when it crashed on a ramp from Interstate 70 to I-465 on Indianapolis' east side on Feb. 20. Passersby extinguished the flames engulfing Denman. Denman was driving for Zionsville-based Jet Star Inc. In a message on Facebook, Jet Star offered condolences to Denman's family and friends. "Thank you all for your thoughts and prayers," the company said. "It is a sad day for the Jet Star family and all that knew 'Duke.'"

Doorbell cameras aid in arrests in killing

INDIANAPOLIS — Two men have been charged in a fatal shooting thanks in part to footage investigators obtained from the victim's doorbell security cameras. Johnthan Quarles, 25, and Gabriel West Jr., 28, are charged in the November 2019 killing of Aaron Jones, whose body was found in his home, where officers also found an unharmed 4-year-old child. Quarles faces one count of murder and one count of robbery resulting in serious bodily injury. West faces a preliminary murder charge, The Indianapolis Star reported. Authorities said Jones had security camera doorbells attached to the front and side doors of the home, which were set to record 30-second snippets when they detect motion. Investigators used those clips and Jones' phone records to piece together a timeline of the events before his killing. According to court documents, Quarles and another man arrived at Jones' house and footage shows Quarles leaving through the side door just a few minutes later before he walks toward the street where his vehicle was parked out of the camera's view. He's then seen returning to the home with a third, unidentified person, who was carrying a large duffel bag. One of the witnesses who identified Quarles to police said that Jones and Quarles had known each other since childhood.

3 dead in wrong-way crash

NEW ALBANY — Three people have died in a wrong-way interstate crash, according to state police. Authorities received calls around 9:15 p.m. Saturday of a white Kia Sportage SUV traveling northbound in the southbound lanes of Interstate 65. The vehicle then turned onto Interstate 265 and traveled westbound in eastbound lanes, crashing into a Chevrolet Cavalier, according to Indiana State Police. The SUV's driver was airlifted to a hospital with severe injuries. Three of four passengers in the other vehicle, including two adults and a juvenile were killed. Driver Taylor D. Cole, 21, of Marengo, Indiana, was killed along with a juvenile son who authorities didn't name. Twenty-two-year-old Leah Renee Onstott, of Depauw, Indiana, was a front-seat passenger who died in the crash. Her son remained hospitalized in unknown condition. Police believe alcohol was a factor in the crash. I-265 was closed until early Sunday. State police are continuing to investigate the crash and possible criminal charges.

Woman gets 7 years for hit-and-run that killed 2

LAFAYETTE — A woman has been sentenced to seven years in prison for a hit-and-run crash that killed two people who had met a tow truck driver along a road before sunrise on a foggy morning. Yariel Butler, 20, was also sentenced Thursday to one year of probation. A jury had convicted the Lafayette woman in February of two counts of leaving the scene of an accident resulting in death and one count of leaving an accident resulting in injury. The August 2018 crash killed Kimberly McDole and Eric Peacock and injured tow truck driver Robert Carley. Tippecanoe County prosecutors said that hours before the crash, McDole had driven her car through a highway intersection and into a cornfield, the Journal and Courier reported. She got a ride home but later called Peacock, who gave her a ride back to the scene, where they met Carley and his tow truck along U.S. 52. Prosecutors said Carley, McDole and Peacock were standing at the back end of the tow truck when Butler struck the three of them. Butler's attorney, Lakeisha Chantay Murdaugh, said that it was foggy at the time of crash and Butler believed she had not hit anyone as she was driving home after a 12-hour shift at NHK, an automotive seating factory in Frankfort. Murdaugh said Butler swerved off the road, hit something, and drove back onto the road. Fred Peacock, Eric Peacock's father, read a letter to the court, where he referred to his son as a "gentle giant."

Howard sheriff fires 6 officers for misconduct

KOKOMO — Six jail officers have been fired for misconduct dating back to early December, officials said. Howard County Sheriff Jerry Asher said a sergeant was fired for making inappropriate comments to two female inmates, first documented on Dec. 3. Two others were fired last month for lying or not cooperating during an investigation into an alleged sexual battery of a female inmate and for conduct unbecoming an officer. One of the two also made "inappropriate sexual comments to an inmate." A third officer was fired in connection with that investigation for disclosing confidential information to one of the two officers. The sheriff said another officer was fired after investigators learned he had made contact with a known felon. Finally, a sixth officer was fired for having an inappropriate relationship with an inmate. Asher told WISH-TV two incidents were referred to the Howard County prosecutor's office.

Restrooms to offer free tampons, pads

WEST LAFAYETTE — West Lafayette will start supplying free feminine hygiene products in all city building restrooms, including men's and gender-neutral restrooms. The decision came after Purdue University's move to offer an assortment of menstrual care products for free in campus bathrooms. After the City Council approved a similar resolution, Mayor John Dennis said West Lafayette was ready to start stocking feminine products in all restrooms in city facilities, including the $31.5 million Wellness and Aquatic Center scheduled to open in early 2021, the Journal and Courier reported. City Council members Shannon King and Kathy Parker sponsored the resolution. "The mayor gave us a thumbs up, and he really had our back," King said. During a pilot project in restrooms at Purdue's Psychological Sciences building, the faculty-led University Senate found that the building averaged $27 a month to restock menstrual care products used from seven dispensers — and the number of products used when they were free was essentially the same as to when they needed to be purchased with loose change. The estimated cost for West Lafayette wasn't immediately available. "I never thought in a million years I'd be anywhere talking in public about this kind of thing," Parker said. "But it only makes sense. We supply toilet paper, right? This is a basic need, too." Kang said she and Parker are "just looking out for other women."

Teen dies, other injured in DeKalb car crash

AUBURN — A 14-year-old died and two other teenagers were injured in a vehicle crash Saturday evening, authorities said. The crash happened just before 7 p.m. on County Road 59, according to the DeKalb County sheriff's office. The car was traveling north when it ran off the road. The driver lost control of the vehicle, which hit a concrete sign and flipped over, WANE-TV reported. The 14-year-old was a passenger in the front seat. The driver was a 16-year-old who suffered a collapsed lung and shoulder injury. The 15-year-old backseat passenger suffered scratches, according to authorities. The crash remained under investigation. Police believe speed was a factor in the crash and said everyone was wearing seat belts.

Community battling erosion files lawsuit

OGDEN DUNES — A community along Lake Michigan has filed a federal lawsuit over its battle with shoreline erosion, saying the town's infrastructure is in danger of "total destruction." Ogden Dunes residents argue protections previously installed are exposed to Lake Michigan and at least one section of a steel wall is failing, according to the lawsuit filed this year in Hammond's federal court. "If any portion of the sheet piling fails, the town infrastructure, including town-owned dunes, beach access ways, roads and utilities — and private homes — are in danger of total destruction," the lawsuit said. "This in turn could lead to the release of sewage and other pollutants into Lake Michigan endangering the public and wildlife, and will endanger the lives of the occupants of those residences." The lawsuit accuses the National Park Service and the Army Corps of Engineers of interfering with permits for protection plans. Federal officials didn't immediately return messages Sunday. Ogden Dunes and neighboring communities have declared emergencies over erosion, according to The Chicago Tribune. There have also been efforts at getting state and federal help. "It really comes down to the survival of our town," resident Rodger Howell told the Tribune. "We're looking to get our permits and put this in place. And we're looking to do what's been previously agreed that we can do."

UK reboots network after cyberattack

LEXINGTON — A month-long attack on the computer networks at Kentucky's largest university system prompted officials to conduct a major reboot of the networks Sunday, officials said. Officials believe the prolonged cyberattack was resolved by a campus-wide network outage at the University of Kentucky and UK HealthCare, university executive vice president for finance and administration Eric Monday told the Lexington Herald-Leader. The attack started in early February from outside of the United States, Monday said. University spokesman Jay Blanton said the attack from unidentified sources has caused computer systems used by students and employees to slow down or temporarily fail. Blanton said patient safety and access to care "was never compromised" and there is no evidence personal information or other sensitive data was accessed or downloaded. UK HealthCare has nearly 2 million registered patients. The attack did not involve a demand for ransom by cyberattackers. Ransomware is malicious software that encrypts a system, effectively locking out its users. The attackers promise to decrypt the information with a decryption key if they are paid. However, Blanton said investigation efforts, including beefing up the network's security software, has cost up to $1.5 million. University of Kentucky President Eli Capilouto said in an email Sunday to students, faculty and staff that limiting the release of information about the network outage was necessary until it was clear that the system reboot was finished. The university and its cybersecurity partners are "confident in our response," Capilouto said. "As always, the security of our community will remain our top priority."

Taylorsville Lake opens more fishing access

TAYLORSVILLE — Additional fishing access has opened at Kentucky's Taylorsville Lake Wildlife Management Area. The access will be available for people wanting to fish the headwaters for the spring white bass run, the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources said in a news release. As temperatures reach the low 50s, white bass will run from downstream up into the headwaters to spawn, the agency said. A portion of Old River Road paralleling the Salt River in Anderson County opened Saturday. The gated accesses at Palmer Road and Old River Road off Kentucky 44 at Taylorsville Lake Wildlife Management Area will remain open from daylight until dark into summer, except for temporary closures during the youth-only and general spring turkey seasons. High water or ongoing road maintenance may force the temporary closure of Old River Road. Closures will be April 4 and 5 and April 18 to May 10 to prevent disturbance to hunters. Gates will reopen May 11 until early August.

Lincoln Birthplace sets open house

HODGENVILLE — The new superintendent at Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historical Park will meet with visitors during an open house this week. Catherine Bragaw plans to attend an open house Wednesday at the park's visitor center, officials said in a news release. The free event is open to the public and light refreshments will be provided. Bragaw, who has spent more than 30 years with the park service, took over at the Lincoln Birthplace in November. National Park Service Southeast Regional Director Robert A. Vogel said in a statement when Bragaw was named that her passion for political science, public history and civic engagement would help her manage how the park interprets the early years of the nation's 16th president. Bragaw says she's looking forward to meeting visitors and those from nearby communities.

Trainers, others charged in horse drugging

UNDATED — More than two dozen people, including the trainer of champion Maximum Security, have been charged in what authorities described Monday as a widespread international scheme to drug horses to make them race faster. Trainer Jason Servis, whose stable includes the 3-year-old champion, was charged with administering performance-enhancing drugs to that horse and others. Maximum Security crossed the finish line first at the 2019 Kentucky Derby before being disqualified for interference and has since won four of his five high-profile races. The charges against trainers, veterinarians and others were detailed in four indictments unveiled Monday in Manhattan federal court. Charges brought against the 27 people include drug adulteration and misbranding conspiracy. U.S. Attorney Geoffrey S. Berman scheduled a news conference in New York City to discuss the charges, which authorities said affected races in New York, New Jersey, Florida, Ohio, Kentucky and the United Arab Emirates. Authorities said participants in the fraud misled government agencies, including federal and state regulators, U.S. Customs and Border Protection agents, various state horse racing regulators and the betting public. In the indictment, Servis is charged with giving Maximum Security a performance-enhancing drug called SGF-1000, recommending it to another trainer, and conspiring with a veterinarian to make it look like a false positive for another substance. The other trainer, Jorge Navarro, is also among those charged. Maximum Security on Feb. 29 won the world's richest race, the $10 million Saudi Cup. Servis is alleged to have given performance-enhancing drugs to "virtually all the racehorses under his control." He entered horses in races approximately 1,082 times from 2018 through February 2020, according to authorities. Authorities say the drugs can cause horses to overexert themselves, leading to heart issues or death. According to the indictments, other drugs used to deaden a horse's sensitivity to pain to improve the horse's performance could also lead to leg fractures.

object that was contaminated by an infected person and then touching your mouth, nose or eyes but this is not considered the main way the virus is spread.

Although people are thought to be most contagious when they are the most ill with the virus, some spread could be possible before people show symptoms — there have been reports of this occurring with COVID-19 — but it is not the main way the virus spreads.

In terms of prevention, the best way to avoid exposure to COVID-19 is to avoid contact with people who are sick; avoid touching your mouth, nose or eyes; stay home when you are sick; cover coughs and/or sneezes with a tissue and then throw the tissue in the trash; and clean and disinfect frequently touched surfaces and objects using a disinfectant household cleaning spray or wipe.

As with any contagious outbreak, you should wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds — especially after going to the bathroom, before eating and after blowing your nose, coughing or sneezing — but when water is not readily available, an alcohol-based hand sanitizer with at least 60% alcohol can be used until proper hand-washing can be accomplished.

People who are well have no need to wear facemasks to protect them from respiratory illnesses including COVID-19, but those who show symptoms should wear a mask to help prevent the spread of the virus to others whether at home or at a healthcare facility. In fact, patients suspected of infection are routinely quarantined by health care providers until diagnosis can be determined.

Although the fatality rate of COVID-19 is still unknown due to the uncertainty of how many have been infected, the consensus is that the virus is most dangerous to the elderly and those with preexisting health conditions. Since the virus spreads from person to person, the risk of infection is higher for people who are in close contact with someone known to have COVID-19 — healthcare workers and household members — or those who live or work in an area with ongoing spread of COVID-19.

COVID-19's early symptoms include fever, dry cough and shortness of breath while advanced or severe symptoms are pneumonia in both lungs, multiple organ failure and death. Unlike some strains of flu, there is no current vaccine to prevent COVID-19. In addition, there is no specific antiviral treatment recommended for those who have contracted COVID-19.

If handled appropriately, isolated cases of COVID-19 — those not involving a large scale community infection — could cause no major disruption of normal activities in the community and it would be businesses as usual with many of the precautions that are already recommended during flu season.

However, widespread infection could affect all aspects of community life from work to social and athletic events and travel and strain local healthcare providers, facilities and emergency responders, so a proactive approach to limiting the exposure to and spread of COVID-19 is all the more important.

be closed for part and possible all of this week — bring the state's total to four, Gov. Andy Beshear said.

Beshear said state lab tests confirmed the latest positive cases in Fayette, Harrison and Jefferson counties. Fayette and Jefferson counties are the two most populous counties in Kentucky. Their county seats are Lexington and Louisville, respectively. Beshear said all three of the individuals are in isolation.

Kentucky's first case was reported in Lexington involving a Harrison County resident. On Monday, Beshear confirmed that one of the people who tested positive from Harrison County was an employee at a Cynthiana Walmart; however, Beshear said the link did not appear to be related to the store.

Six employees who worked near the person who tested positive have been isolated and have not shown symptoms. Beshear said people should not stop visiting the store out of fear of catching the virus. One of the four people who tested positive has a travel history. The virus is now believed to be community spread, according to Beshear.

As a preventative measure, Harrison county's public schools superintendent will close that school system for part of this coming week, and perhaps the entire week, Beshear has said. Nursing homes are recommended to close to visitors and public gatherings should be delayed in the county with a population of more than 18,000, the governor said.

"We are ready for this," Beshear said in a video broadcast on Facebook. "We have been preparing with every minute that we've had to make sure that we can respond and respond appropriately."

The governor has declared a state of emergency to ensure all state entities have the necessary resources to respond. The declaration sets up a central, coordinated response, he said.

People should engage in "social distancing" — trying to stay about 6 feet away from someone else, Beshear said.

"If you are sick anywhere in Kentucky, but especially in Harrison County, do not go to work," Beshear said.

Beshear said 21 individuals have been tested for the virus in Kentucky and 17 tests have come back negative.

Correction

A Madison City Council story in the Wednesday, March 4, edition incorrectly reported the type of communications equipment Madison Fire Department hopes to puchase in the coming year and the number of units that would be needed.

The department wants dual band pagers for 60 firefighters at a cost of about $45,000.

The equipment will allow better communication between departments.

Upcoming S.R. 62 closures previewed

Courier staff report

Jefferson County commissioners recently discussed an upcoming 30-day road closure on State Road 62.

The closure could start anywhere from April 1 to Oct. 31 and shut down three segments of S.R. 62 east of King's Daughters' Hospital, Commissioner David Bramer said. Road crews will perform maintenance on each segment at a time and the closure will last for 30 days after work begins.

The Indiana Department of Transportation has identified two detours; the official detour will run through S.R. 62, S.R. 250 and U.S. 421, while the unofficial detour will run through North Copeland Ridge Road and County Road 325 East. Both will be in effect during the same time period.

Commissioners will identify weight restrictions for each detour before signing the final closure agreement.

More information will be provided as it becomes available.

Other highlights from Thursday's meeting:

• Sheriff David Thomas said the county jail would soon require all inmates brought into the facility to submit to a temperature test and fill out a form asking if they have shown any symptoms of the coronavirus COVID-19. Sheriff departments around the state have implemented similar policies, he said.

• Thomas also said the sheriff's office has developed a jail officers training school they will present to the Indiana Law Enforcement Training Board that could save the county hundreds of dollars in class fees and travel expenses to other schools located in central and northern Indiana. Once approved, the school would be available to surrounding counties, he said. Jefferson County's current inmate population is in the 170s while the number of in-house inmates is in the 120s, Thomas reported.

• Commissioners appointed Robert Phillips to a one-year term on the county insurance committee.

• The commission read two bids for security cameras to be placed at the north and south sides of the county highway garage. Bramer said the cameras will provide extra security in addition to the gate and key fob system already in place. One quote was for $3,990 plus a monthly service agreement of $44, while another was for $3,879.83 with a service agreement of $49 a month. The county did not take action on either bid.

• The commission moved its April 2 regular meeting to April 3 at 9 a.m.

The commission's next meeting is 5 p.m. on March 19.

and the placement of the room and conjoining linear hallway would allow for easy expansion if that becomes necessary, Carnegie said.

A proposed receiving area (shown in dashes on the schematic) to the north of the kitchen will potentially serve as a canopy for unloading trucks while another smaller area (also indicated by dashes) bordering the public entrance, could serve as another canopy area.

Two spaces listed in the plan — an outbuilding for storing equipment and a 4,738 square-foot courts facility — would be added as alternate bids that can be added or deducted from the overall base bid and scope of the project depending on the county's final decision. The area for courtroom proceedings was included as an appendage to the south side of the building so that if that bid is not part of the final project, the void would not exist in a central location, Carnegie said.

Configuration was a major point of discussion as Sheriff David Thomas and Major Kenny Jasper expressed concern about the safety of taking inmates from the sallyport and booking areas on the west side of the structure to the general population lockup on the east side of the building. Thomas said the sallyport would need to be shifted closer to the inmate population, otherwise it would force guards to walk prisoners through the center of the building as well as through sheriff department offices.

Jasper had additional concerns related to safety. He pointed out that the public entrance and adjoining courts facility on the south side should be moved further west, away from inmate housing, and suggested adding an outside catwalk around the building to make it easier for guards to monitor multiple areas at once and drop tear gas if necessary.

"That way the officer has the high ground, not the inmate," he said.

Carnegie said his team would create some new concepts based on the feedback and share those with the committee over the coming days. The jail exploratory committee will meet again Wednesday, March 18 at 5:30 p.m.

Indiana's RV industry hopes to roll past disruptions from coronavirus

By ED SEMMLER
South Bend Tribune

It was supposed to be a rather uneventful year for the RV industry.

Except for the uncertainties of a presidential election, the excess dealership inventory that caused a manufacturing slowdown in 2019 had largely worked its way out of the system and the stock market was on a roll.

The RV Industry Association reported that shipments in January reached 33,000 units, a 29% jump from the 25,500 units that were shipped in the same month in 2019.

But then uncertainty, and the coronavirus scare, set in, bringing concerns about a skittish market and trade disruptions.

Considering the questions, longtime RV analyst Richard Curtin, a professor at the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center, recently offered a wide-ranging prediction for shipments for the year — anywhere from 380,300 to 420,200 units.

He ultimately settled in the middle, predicting that 410,100 units would be shipped in 2020, still a 1% increase compared to the prior year.

Elkhart County is the epicenter of the RV industry, employing thousands of people in the region at local factories and suppliers.

Wayne Kaylor, CEO of Way Interglobal Network in Elkhart, said there have been some supply disruptions because of the coronavirus but work is gradually ramping back up at many of the factories in China that temporarily closed in the wake of the virus outbreak.

"By blind luck, we've been fairly unscathed," said Kaylor, whose company supplies consumer electronics, appliances and other items to the RV, boating and manufactured housing industries. "In a nutshell, supply will be tight but it should be back to normalcy at the factory level."

But even if factories begin ramping up again, there are still concerns about transportation — trucking and ocean freight — and whether finished products can get where they need to go to make it to the United States.

Kaylor said the industry should know in the next several weeks whether the coronavirus shock has worked itself out of the system or whether there will be some lingering issues. In the meantime, he has proposed that suppliers to the industry work together on shipping, delivery and other logistics to avoid slowdowns for RV manufacturers.

"Let's help each other out during this period to keep production rolling," he said.

Ball State University economist Michael Hicks said even a short supply disruption, coupled with stock market declines, would hit manufacturing-dependent states such as Indiana particularly hard.

"If the factories open up next week, there's still going to be some disruption," said Hicks, who pointed out that the automotive industry is also dependent on various components made in China. "If it hangs on a couple of months, there's going to be widespread disruption."

Just as important is the impact on consumer confidence if the stock market continues to tumble. "If you're feeling poorer," Hicks said, "are you going to step up and make that purchase?" of an RV.

But reflecting the difficulty of trying to assess the impact of the virus, Hicks also pointed out that low interest rates could work in the favor of the RV industry, as well as the tendency of Americans to flock to camping when they're worried about more exotic travel overseas or on cruise ships.

That's what helped propel the industry in the aftermath of the 9/11 terror attacks.

For its part, RV industry leaders continue to project confidence.

"The industry is cautiously optimistic that the coronavirus and the election will have a minimal impact and that we'll have another strong year in 2020," said Bill Baker, senior director of research for the RV Industry Assocation.

That's also the belief of Darryl Searer, chairman and co-owner of Ultra-Fab Products in Elkhart. Partly because inventory was built up prior to the Chinese New Year celebration — which can last about three weeks — Ultra Fab was able to maintain its shipments of RV aftermarket parts and enhancements to its dealers.

"We've had zero interruptions," Searer said, adding that the factory that manufactures the company's products is about 100 miles from Shanghai.

the fire out with a garden hose. The blaze was quickly brought under control by firefighters but not before the shed was a total loss. Firefighters did prevent the fire from spreading to a nearby barn and residence at the property.

The home owner was in the process of building a new structure nearby and trusses and new lumber for that project ignited and were also lost in the fire.

There were no injuries and firefighters were on scene for about an hour to ensure that the blaze was out.

Fiancée charged in felony battery of toddler

Kaitlyn Hopkins

Courier staff report

A Washington County woman has been charged with felony battery and neglect of a dependent in connection with a case involving the two-year-old son of her fiancé.

The charges, filed last week after a six-month investigation, accuse Kaitlyn Hopkins, 20 of Little York, with the two Level 6 felonies.

The investigation began in August of 2019 when Indiana State Trooper Tyler Matthew was dispatched to Norton Children's Hospital in Louisville at the request of The Washington County Indiana Department of Child Services after DCS investigators advised that a two-year-old male toddler was transported to Kosairs, and investigators requested assistance investigating possible child abuse.

The investigation revealed that the child's father first took the boy to the Scott County Hospital after he was informed the child had caught his leg in a crib at his residence.

The investigation also revealed the child's primary caregiver during that time was Hopkins, the father's fiancée.

Medical professionals from Kosairs also contacted the University of Louisville Pediatric Forensic Medicine Unit (PFM) for assistance in investigating the case.

PFM issued a report on their findings to state police and DCS in October of 2019 and Matthew continued the investigation by conducting interviews and gathering further evidence before turning his findings over to the Washington County Prosecutor's Office.

Hopkins was lodged in the Washington County Jail without incident.

The child in the investigation was placed with paternal relatives after being released from Norton Children's Hospital.

No. 1 Silver Creek ends Madison season

By DAVID CAMPBELL

dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

CORYDON — Madison knew it was going to face an uphill battle if it wanted to have any chance of knocking off defending state champion Silver Creek. And although that upset never materialized, the Cubs played until the final whistle before bowing out to the No. 1 Dragons.

Madison trailed the entire way but stayed close throughout before falling 70-53 to Class 3A No. 1 Silver Creek in the Sectional 30 championship game on Saturday in Corydon.

While the final margin was 17, Madison never allowed the Dragons to blow open the game and trailed by just 12 after a Mason Welsh 3-pointer with 2 1/2 minutes to play. It was a far better showing than the 91-60 shellacking Creek put on the Cubs in January and Madison head coach Sherron Wilkerson was proud of his team's effort.

"I was very, very proud of our guys. We've had a tumultuous season at some points and we've had a good season at some points. But they typically say that the pain of life is what makes you grow and I think they've grown exponentially," Wilkerson said. "We tried to make a positive out of everything and for us we have an acronym for 'FAIL' and that's 'First Attempt In Learning.' This is the first time this group has been in a sectional championship. It's unfortunate that we had two seniors whose eligibilities are up and won't have a chance to come back and try get back to this position. But I've told those guys that they better be here next year."

Madison played its best game in months on Friday when it rolled past Scottsburg in the semifinals and was hopeful of carrying that momentum over the Saturday. Defensively, the Cubs stayed in the game early but a six-minute scoreless streak to open the contest doomed Madison's chances.

Silver Creek (25-2) didn't blow out the game but it led 10-0 before Luke Miller broke the ice for the Cubs and held a 16-4 lead after the first quarter. Other than a brief run in the third quarter, Madison played virtually even with the Dragons the rest of the way, outscored the final three quarters by only five points.

For Wilkerson, the game was won and lost at the foul line. While most statistics were even, Silver Creek spent the night at the line eventually hitting 26-of-33 shots while Madison was just 6-of-12.

"There is one constant in the universe and that's statistics. We actually had one more look at the rim than they had, we made one more three than they made, we lost the rebounding war by one rebound, we had one less assist than they had, we had one less steal than they had, we turned it over five more times," Wilkerson said. "And then you go to the free throws and it's

Hot-shooting Pioneers oust Rebels 87-66

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern entered Saturday's Class 2A Sectional 45 championship game knowing Providence's big and physical lineup would present problems. But throw in hot-shooting and an early double-digit lead for the Pioneers and the Rebels never gained traction as Providence walked away with an 87-66 title game victory at King Gym in Hanover.

Providence won its first sectional championship since 2016 when the Pioneers marched all the way to Class 2A South Semistate. For Southwestern, the blow derailed a shot to three-peat as Sectional 45 champions. The Rebels never led on Saturday and a game plan that had won 17 games this season failed on this particular night.

"You have to give Providence a lot of credit," Southwestern head coach Zac Nussbaum said. "They just came out in a big-time atmosphere and shot lights out and when you're like us and play a zone that's the positive and negative effect of playing it. The more they hit, the more we had to spread our defense out but they hit shots and handled our pressure and you have to tip your hat to them for that."

Behind 10 points from Foster Mefford and six points by Zach Cole, Southwestern shot 50 percent in the first quarter but Providence negated the duo by showing off its impressive shooting display from the get-go. The Pioneers sank three 3-pointers — two by Nick Sexton — early and started pulling away with a narrow 11-10 lead.

The Rebels trailed just 19-15 after Mefford's final bucket of the opening period when Austin Grantz went on a personal 7-0 run that included the Pioneers' fourth 3-pointer of the frame. Providence went on to lead 26-17 at the first quarter stop and continued to surge well into the second period. The Pioneers added two more 3-pointers plus six points by Sterling Huber and the lead had ballooned to 18 points with 3:18 still left in the half.

Southwestern did its best to chip away at the deficit to trail by 12 at halftime and then got the margin down to 10 points near the midway mark of the third quarter. But from there the Rebels were never able to do further damage.

Providence continued to sizzle from the field. Huber hit three 3-pointers in the third quarter as Grantz added four more points and the 10-point lead quickly expanded back up to as much as 16 in the period. The Pioneers finished off the win by scoring 25 points in the fourth quarter to

The Madison girls competed in the 11-team East Central Invitational and had a great day. Lundun Perry picked up wins in the 55-meter dash and the 200-meter dash, while Harper Watson won the 400-meter dash.

Other finishes for the Lady Cubs were: Cadence Traylor, fourth, 800 run; Megan Eades, fourth, shot put; Watson, fourth, long jump; Chloe Ferris, Clare Wilber, Brett Cahall and Traylor, fifth, 3200 relay; Isabel Wilber, seventh, 3200 run; Stella Felts, eighth, shot put; Ferris, 800 run, 10th; and Breck Ralston, 14th, 55 dash.

"It was a pretty great showing all around, with some outstanding top finishes, PR's and experience gained for the whole team," said first-year Madison coach Patrick Maschino, who was making his debut with the team. "I was very pleased with all of the girls' effort and performances regardless of their finishes."

Madison's boys headed to Ball State University where they competed in the Owl Invitational.

The Cubs had three athletes competing with Bryce Foy winning the 60-meter dash in 6.29. Noah Caswell was ninth in the shot put with a personal-best throw of 41 feet and Julian Sample was ninth in the 3200 run in 11:16.78.

"This was a great start to the season. Noah getting a PR and the other guys were right at personal bests," Madison boys coach Scott Holcroft said. "Right now, Bryce is 48th in the state; the top 24 make the state finals."

Madison's boys compete in the Wabash Indoor Invitational on Saturday. The girls are next scheduled to commpete when the outdoor season begins on April 9 and Madison hosts Shawe and South Ripley.

Crozier, Samford women clinch NCAA berth

Bulldogs beat UNC Greensboro for 1st SoCon title since 2012

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Former Madison Cub Olivia Crozier and the Samford women's basketball team punched their ticket to the NCAA Tournament with an exciting 59-54 win over UNC Greensboro in the Southern Conference Tournament Championship om Sunday.

Natalie Armstrong scored 20 points and her 3-pointer with 20.5 seconds left carried Samford to a berth in the NCAA Tournament. Samford's win gives the program its first SoCon title since 2012, also the last time it qualified for the tournament.

Charity Brown drove the left side of the lane, drew a pair of defenders, whipped a left-handed pass to the 6-foot-2 Armstrong who released the ball with a second left on the shot clock.

Out of its timeout, UNC Greensboro's Nadine Soliman attempted a deep 3-pointer that wasn't close and the ball bounced harmlessly out of bounds. Off the inbound, Sara Myers threw a three-quarter court pass to Brown who caught up to the ball and laid it in for the final points.

Brown finished with 14 points and Shauntai Battle added 12 and matched Armstrong's seven rebounds. Crozier, a 2015 Madison graduate, had a rebound and was 0-for-1 from the floor in four minutes of action.

Alexus Willey led the Spartans in scoring with 14 points off the bench, hitting four 3-pointers, and Aja Boyd scored 11 points with 10 rebounds.

The Bulldogs (18-14) beat the Spartans for the third time this season. Samford, UNC Greenboro (23-9) and Chattanooga each finished 10-4 in regular season play for a three-way title share. But Samford earned the top-seed by virtue of the tie-breaker and the Spartans were the third seed.

Southwestern shrugs off slow start to win in semifinals

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern shrugged off a sluggish first half and used a red-hot third quarter to cruise past Henryville 53-30 in the Class 2A Sectional 45 semifinals on Friday night at King Gymnasium.

The Rebels punched their ticket to a third-straight sectional championship game by outscoring Henryville 34-17 in the second half after leading by just six at halftime. Southwestern caught fire with six 3-pointers in the final two quarters and was never threatened in the final 16 minutes of play.

"It took us a little bit of time to get into a rhythm," Southwestern head coach Zac Nussbaum said. "We got shots in the first half that we wanted but they just weren't falling. We finally saw some shots go down there in the second half and that got us going. The way we finished up is a good sign heading into the title game tomorrow night."

Despite holding Henryville to just two points in the second quarter, the Rebel lead stood at only 19-13 at halftime. But Southwestern freed itself of cold shooting and sloppy play to dominate the third quarter for a 22-5 run.

Foster Mefford, who was held scoreless in the first half, erupted in the second half for a second time this week and drilled a trio of 3-pointers to spark the rally while Billy Eccles hit a 3-pointer and three free throws for six points. Four points by Zach Cole plus a trey off the bench by Colton Cloud pushed the lead to as much as 24 points in the frame and the Rebels put the game on cruise control the rest of the way.

Mefford added eight points in the fourth quarter to help ice the win. The two teams played even in the final eight minutes but the Rebels controlled and the third quarter push was more than enough to ensure the win.

"When Foster (Mefford) gets going we look really good," Nussbaum said. "It was beautiful to see that three-point shot go down for us there in the second half because we will need it on Saturday. That third quarter is where that rhythm got going for us."

Henryville (7-17) committed seven of its 12 turnovers in the second half as Southwestern (17-8) also saw its defense tighten up and the Hornets were held to just three field goals in the second and third quarters combined. The Rebels 30 points allowed were the least given up this season and just the second time this year they've held a team to under 40 points.

"I think our guys are buying into the defensive side a little bit better," Nussbaum said. "Our best wins this year have been when we've held teams to under 50% field goal percentage and every loss we have had is when a team shoots over 50%. Starting to buy in a little bit and we packed that zone in tonight."

Mefford led all scorers with his 17 points — all in the second half. Eccles was the only other double figure scorer with 12. Cole scored nine points including six in the second half.

Westin Allen led the Hornets with six points.

Providence 53, Switzerland Co. 43 — Switzerland County led Friday's second semifinals at halftime but Providence used a third quarter run to fend off the Pacers and advance 53-43.

The Pacers led by as many as seven points in the first half but fell victim to turnovers and Providence's suffocating defense. Switzerland County had 17 turnovers and never fully got the boost on offense needed to score the upset.

"We knew coming in they were really good defensively," Switzerland County head coach Adam Dennis said of Providence. "They are strong and really athletic so we knew we were going to have trouble scoring. We tried to keep their score low enough to get ourselves in position to win and we did that the first half. But the second half some things went their way and not ours. Our kids played really hard and they should have nothing to be regretful about tonight."

With Providence in foul trouble throughout the first half, Switzerland County shook off an early 11-2 deficit and played within one possession by the end of the first quarter and through the early part of the second. Patrick Stow canned two free throws to tie the game with 6:18 remaining in the period and a bucket by Stow less than a minute after gave the Pacers their first lead at 15-13.

After two free throws by Landon Wilks and Coby Chase's second 3-pointer of the first half, the Pacer lead stretched to 20-13 but Providence battled back, ending the quarter on a 6-0 run to trail 20-19 at halftime. That run carried over as the Pioneers went on the attack to open the second half.

Providence (17-7) grabbed the lead with 6:42 left in the third quarter on a shot inside by Zach Johnson and the opening bucket gave way to a 13-4 run in the frame. The Pacers briefly got the game back within two points on a jumper by Damian Breeck but the Pioneers answered with a 6-0 rally to forge an eight point lead heading into the fourth quarter.

Chase drained another three with 6:50 left in the final period to get Switzerland County within three points but a 7-0 Providence run pushed the lead out of reach for good. The Pacers were never able to string together consistency on the offensive end and the Pioneer defense took its toll in the second half.

"They were really physical on defense tonight," Dennis said. "They were really physical with Damian (Breeck) and chased him around all night and overall it's just tough and it was tough to find guys open. When we had situations where we needed shooters or we needed to find the open guy they were quick to close out and we just couldn't break through the way we wanted to."

Chase led Switzerland County with 13 points while Breeck was held well below his season average and finished with nine points after seven points in the fourth quarter. Breeck finishes his stellar career with 1,106 points for fourth-most in school history.

Johnson led all scorers, pacing Providence with 23 points despite sitting much of the first half with foul trouble. Austin Grantz added 11 points.

Switzerland County ends the season with a 6-18 mark.

out-produce Southwestern by nine — including an 8-2 run in the final minutes — that pushed the final margin to 21 points.

"Our boys kept fighting and fighting," Nussbaum said of the Rebels' effort. "They never gave up but Providence kept their composure and they didn't turn it over and they kept getting good looks. You have to give them credit for that."

The Pioneers shot 59% from the field overall — including 11 3's en route to 58% beyond the arc — as well as well over 60 percent in the second half. Southwestern never strayed from its routine defensive sets and was forced to pick its poison on how to attack the Pioneers' arsenal.

With Southwestern sitting back in its 1-2-2 zone, Providence found the open man leading to its hot night from the 3-point line. When the Rebels switched it up and went to their 1-3-1 half-court trap in the second half, the Pioneers went over the top and were able to find cutters and wide-open layups on the baseline.

"There are probably thousands of people in the stands asking why we weren't going to a man-to-man but these guys have never played man before," Nussbaum said of the defense. "Any time we have tried playing man this season it has turned into a layup line for the other team. We tried mixing it up as much as we could but (Providence) just handled everything we threw at them."

On offense, Southwestern shot just 35 percent from the field and was 8-of-28 from the 3-point line for 28 percent. While Mefford and Cole combined for a 14-of-26 performance from the field, the rest of the Rebels struggled despite wide-open looks both inside and outside the arc.

Mefford led all scorers with 32 points while Cole added 16 points but the rest of the Rebels were just 6-of-30 from the field and combined for just two of the team's points through the entire first half. Both Mefford and Cole, as well as Austin Kramer, were named to the all-tournament team.

"Sometimes it sounds almost too simple when you say it comes down to hitting shots but I think that was part of it tonight," Nussbaum said. "I'll take Austin Kramer and Billy Eccles shooting wide-open shots any day but they just weren't falling, especially in the first half. Those two are great shooters. If anything tonight, I think those two along with our other guys returning will take this game and use it as a fire in their belly for next season."

Huber led Providence with 23 points including five 3-pointers while Grantz was 7-of-9 from the field and added 20 points to go along with 13 rebounds. Sexton added 13 points while tournament MVP Zach Johnson chipped in 12 points. Huber and Grantz as well, as Nick Sexton, were named to the all-tournament team from Providence.

Switzerland County's Coby Chase and Damian Breeck were also named to the all-tournament team as well as Austin's Trey Hargrave and Clarksville's Dae'von Fuqua.

Southwestern finishes the season at 17-9 but returns the majority of the roster heading into next season. The Rebels lose starting forward Mitchell Cline and reserve Trevor Smith but return four starters alongside Matthew Williams, who is expected to be fully healed from a season-ending knee injury earlier this year.

Madison dominates in semifinal win

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

CORYDON — Madison shrugged off the final effects of its recent 10-game losing streak with an impressive 67-59 win over Scottsburg in the semifinals of the Class 3A Sectional at Corydon on Friday.

The Cubs played their best game in two months, rolling over their archrivals with an dominating performance through the first three quarters that staked Madison to a 22-point lead.

The final two and a half minutes weren't nearly as well played and Scottsburg used that opening to cut the final margin into single digits but that didn't stop Madison for earning its first berth to the sectional finals since 2016.

"I thought we got off to a slow start because we were nervous and you expect that. We were playing for a spot in the sectional championship," said Madison coach Sherron Wilkerson, who was back on the bench after foot surgery kept him away for two games. "I thought they did a really good job of adjusting in the second quarter and allowed us a chance to build the lead."

Madison (13-12) didn't play poorly in the first quarter but still found itself trailing after the first eight minutes, 14-11. But it was over the next two quarters that the Cubs dominated.

Attacking Scottsburg (14-11) on the offensive end and shutting the Warriors down on defense, Madison opened the second on a 9-0 run and never looked back, outscoring Scottsburg 20-5 in the second to build a 31-19 halftime lead.

The halftime break did nothing to cool off the Cubs, who extended the lead to 48-29 by the close of the third period and eventually built their largest lead, 64-42, after a Kaden Oliver layup with 2:35 to play.

The game switched dramatically over the final two and half minutes as Scottsburg outscored Madison 17-3 to close the gap to eight with 13 seconds left. But there was simply not enough time for the Warriors to mount a serious challenge.

For Wilkerson, the final three minutes were a wake-up call for his team which he said is still trying to learn how to win.

"It's tournament time and strange things happen. One of the things I told them is that we can't play not to lose and that's exactly what we did over that final three minutes. We played not to lose," Wilkerson said. "You can see what happens when you stop being aggressive. I thought Scottsburg did a really good job of keeping themselves in the game. But on the other hand, we did a good job of closing out the game. I'm pretty happy with where we are and at this stage, it's survive and advance. And we did that."

Madison ended up shooting a worse percentage from the floor than Scottsburg (50% to 52.4%) but it was the Cubs' defense that was the difference in the game. The Warriors turned the ball over 17 times on 11 Madison steals and their 30-point outburst in the fourth was one point better than their total through the first three quarters.

"The last two days in practice that's all we've talked about, defense, defense, defense," Wilkerson said. "I think the Salem game (on Tuesday) really set us up for this game. I thought Salem did a really good job of exploiting our weakness and we struggled to guard the basketball and even at certain times tonight I thought about going to a zone. But we trusted the guys, they stepped up and persevered and got the stops when we needed them."

Senior Mason Welsh continued his torrid sectional for the Cubs with 23 more points to lead all scorers and added six rebounds while going a perfect 10-for-10 from the free-throw line. Oliver had 17 points and six rebounds while Nick Center had nine points, four rebounds and five assists.

Nicholas Sebastio led Scottsburg with 19 points and seven rebounds while Hayden Cutter had 17 points.

The game marked the 46th time the two schools have met in the IHSAA Tournament — tied for the fourth most in state history — and Madison now leads that series 27-19.

WOMEN'S LACROSSE

Hanover splits two games on weekend

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover women's lacrosse split a pair of matches over the weekend, defeating Wisconsin-La Crosse 14-7 at home on Friday but falling 11-9 to Heidelberg (Ohio) on the road Saturday.

Emma Boomershine, Kinna Balasko and Milah Young scored four goals each to lead Hanover in the win over La Crosse. Anne Breeding and Eme Edeman added markers for the Panthers.

Julia Long stopped 19 shots in goal for Hanover to pick up the win. Delaney Benner had three saves in relief.

Heidelberg scored the last five goals of the game, all over the final 13 minutes, to pick up the win on Sunday.

Balasko had four goals while Breeding and Young had two each for the Panthers. Young also had two assists.

Long had 17 saves in the loss.

Hanover, now 3-3 on the season, opens Heartland Collegiate Lacrosse Conference play at Franklin on Wednesday. The Panthers then host Birmingham Southern on Saturday.

just glaring. As a coach, you never want to point the finger or point the blame, but it's really hard to overcome when a team shoots 33 free throws and you shoot 12. Statistically, you're behind the eight ball and you just can't recover from that.

"But I thought our guys did a really good job of trying to adjust to what the officials were asking and I thought sometimes because of what was on the line, it got highly emotional and they did a really good job of controlling their emotions. It's hard to get guys to continue to fight under those conditions but I was really proud of the way the guys responded."

Madison senior Mason Welsh wrapped up his high school career with 14 points and finished just shy of the 1,000-point club with 983 for his career. Junior Luke Miller also had 14 points for the Cubs, who shot 21-for-46 (45.7%) for the game, including 5-of-11 (45.5%) on 3-point attempts.

Six-foot-six junior Kooper Jacobi scored 19 points and had nine rebounds to lead Silver Creek while 6-foot-9 junior Trey Kaufman, who played Friday's semifinals with Purdue head coach Matt Painter in attendance, had 17 points and eight rebounds. Sophomore Branden Northern also had 17 points.

Silver Creek advances to the regional at Washington on Saturday where it will square off against No. 2 Heritage Hills (22-3) in the first semifinal. No. 3 Greensburg (23-2) and Washington (20-5) will meet in the second semifinal.

Madison ends the season with a 13-13 record. After opening the campaign 10-2 — their best start in 22 years — the Cubs struggled through a 10-game losing streak, the program's longest in 40 years. Madison regrouped to win three-straight before falling to Silver Creek in the sectional final.

Along with Welsh, Madison loses fellow senior Jared Ferguson to graduation. But the Cubs return seven of their top eight scorers and the future is bright.

"We've tried to change the culture and we've tried to change the approach and those guys have done a really good job of responding," Wilkerson said. "Mason Welsh and Jared Ferguson are in an unique position. They have been a part of a really good program that has went through some struggles and it just so happens that they've had to face those struggles through most of their tenure. To be seniors and to be dealing with their third coach and to step up the way they have as leaders, I can't speak enough about the way they have responded. Those two guys are going to be successes in whatever endeavors they choose to do in life."

BRIDGE

ll games go through a life. The early participants are like children, trying to work out the complexities, but starting from a limited database.

Some of the fledgling bridge players had ideas that were not accepted at the time, only later. S. Garton Churchill, who died in 1992 at the age of 92, comes to mind. Known to his friends as Church, he learned auction bridge in 1916, before progressing to contract in 1928. Many of his proposed bidding methods were ridiculed at the time, but have since been adopted.

Church was proud of today's deal, which he played in 1960 in partnership with Cecil Head, the founder of the sporting goods company. They won the 1948 Life Master Pairs national title with a record average of 65.5% over the four sessions.

Head (North) reversed on the second round because of his excellent diamond fit. Three clubs was fourth-suit forcing, marking time. Four diamonds was their "picture bid," promising four-card support, usually with two honors. Knowing his partner had at most one club, Church immediately jumped to seven diamonds. Real bridge players don't need Blackwood! They had reached the excellent grand slam with only 25 combined high-card points.

The play was a simple matter of technique. Church won the spade lead with dummy's ace, played a diamond to his ace, cashed dummy's two high hearts and ruffed a heart high in hand. He took the club ace, ruffed a club and trumped another heart high. A second club ruff was followed by the diamond king and, finally, dummy's established heart nine, upon which declarer threw his spade loser.

Donations to help substance abuse in Jefferson County

Norbert Schafer, Kenny Garrett, Orville Marsh, Jefferson House Secretary Deana Andrew, Vice President Dottie Bents and Treasurer Feleisha Spry were present when Garrett delivered the donation to the Jefferson House.

Ruth Haven and Jefferson House, two programs in Jefferson County that help men and women recovering from alcohol and/or substance abuse transition back into society, received a $1,500 donation each from the city of Hanover to help cover the costs of running each program.

Both programs are located in renovated homes in downtown Madison that aim to provide a supportive environment for people with substance abuse issues.

While there, they can learn about the disease of addiction, develop skills to re-establish their lives, maintain sobriety and give back to the community.

Most recently, another program called Hannah's Harbor was added in Hanover to help provide a next phase for those who complete the program at Ruth Haven.

Can't turn a blind eye to health problem

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I believe my husband has a very serious disease. I'm an inveterate Googler and started noticing symptoms about a year ago. I mentioned his prevailing symptom to a friend in the medical field, and the condition I suspected is exactly what she popped out with. Also, my brother is an MD and he has told me that my husband should see a neurologist ASAP.

The problem is that my husband won't see a doctor, and, even if he did, I'm pretty sure he wouldn't tell them what's really going on. He denies the symptoms that I've seen. I'm not the only one who has noticed. Without naming the disease, I've told him I'm worried and said that I know he'd feel bad if the shoe were on the other foot, but he won't make the appointment.

I am worried and feel like I can't talk openly with anyone about it. If he does have the disease, it's incurable and terminal and, from what I've read, there are no treatments that can slow its progression — yet. But I still feel like knowing would allow us to prepare. Is there anything I can do either to get my husband to the doctor or to find my own peace? My friend said she sees this all the time and there's nothing to do but wait until my husband has a serious fall or accident. It feels terrible to wait for that. – Worried Wife

Dear Worried Wife: I am so sorry that you are going through this. Seeing your loved one suffer is heartbreaking. Your initial instinct to want to have him take care of himself is the most natural one in the world. His instinct to run away and avoid knowing what is wrong is also a natural one that comes from fear. Now that you know that both of your instincts are natural and fair, it's time for next steps.

Sit him down and have a heart-to-heart with him, but don't tell him that you have been Googling around and playing doctor. Rather, tell him how much you love him and that you are afraid to lose him. Tell him that you will support him in whatever the doctor says but that you would really like him to see a doctor – if not for himself, then for you, the love of his life. If that fails, ask your brother, a medical doctor, if he can help persuade your husband to see a neurologist. Best of luck to you and your family.

Dear Annie: Four years ago, I kissed my wife goodnight, and we went to sleep as usual. The next morning, she told me that she wasn't feeling like herself and wanted to spend the day with her friends. Later that evening, she called to say that she would not be coming home until she was able to figure things out, including if she still wanted to be married and a mother to our 10-year-old daughter.

I tried my best to be supportive, hoping that some personal time would help. In the 12 years that we had been together, we both shared that each of us considered the other our soulmates. – Betrayed by Soulmate

Dear Betrayed by Soulmate: I am so sorry that your wife left you and your daughter. We will never know exactly why she did what she did, but what you can control is how you react to what she did. Now is the time to step into your personal power, if not for yourself, then for your daughter.

Counseling or support groups can be very helpful at this time, especially for your daughter. You have to be mother and father for her, and that is a big ask, but you can do it with help from others who have survived similar challenges.
